From Chop Suey to Chinoiserie Chic: Memories of China across the Australian Landscape

The relationship between Australia and China has always been one of ambivalence, that is, one built on fear and fascination. Whilst often perceived in a negative light, the Chinese people who have made Australia their home have created many positive and lasting memories, some of which have been layered quite subconsciously into the Australian psyche.

Join Dr Kathie Blunt of the Chinese Heritage Assoc. of Australia as she takes us on a memorable tour of discovery of Chinese influence across the Australian cultural landscape from the colonial era to the present.
